Get Early Access to the PATIENTS Professors Academy Application

The PATIENTS Professors Academy is a free 5-week online program for a national audience of patients, caregivers, community leaders, patient advocates, healthcare workers, pharmaceutical companies and government employees, and clinical researchers.

Graduates from the program are equipped to drive research in their communities and participate as patient advisors.

Click the video above to hear from our 2022 graduates and learn more.

Ready to apply? Click here to sign up by March 9 to get early access to the application on March 10, more than a week before everyone else!
The application opens to the public on March 20.

SHining the SpOtlight Wide (SHOW)

On February 3, a curated number of attendees gathered for the SHOW conference. We discussed continuous engagement as well as principles and frameworks for successful dissemination and evaluated three dissemination toolkits.

COMMIT to West Baltimore

Read about our two-part series in the Baltimore Times about our COMMIT partnership with Donald L. Wright Jr. at Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church. We look forward to our continued work to advance health equity through research in true partnership with communities.

“My job is to get the information out to the community about what The COMMIT Project is and what it does,” said Pastor Wright. “COMMIT seeks to impact the community to become better and to invite people to the table.”

New Podcast Episode

Hear how a parent's nightmare is now saving lives. In our latest episode, we talk with Marty McNair, whose son Jordan passed away after he suffered from heatstroke during an organized off-season team workout during his freshmen season as a football player at University Maryland College Park. Along with his son's mother Tonya Wilson, they started The Jordan McNair foundation. They knew there was a need to educate the sports community about the issue of heat-related sports illnesses and injuries. Take a listen to see how they've grown
