

Objectives of Symposium

Upon completion of participation in this symposium addressing home-based care, the participant will be able to:

1. Identify forces shifting the delivery of health care services along the continuum from acute care and long term care to an individual's home and community.
2. Differentiate principles of transitional and coordinated care and how they support patients throughout the continuum of care.
3. Discuss developments within home-based care such as the complexity of patient care needs, the variety of disorders managed in a home setting, and the growth of informational technology, and the impact of these issues on patient care management and outcomes.
