REPORT OF

APRIL 1918

REPORT OF THE ENTRANCE EXAMINER TO THE BOARD OF MEDICAL EXAMINERS OF MARYLAND FOR THE YEAR ENDING MARCH 31, 1918.

Since the last report the work of your entrance examiner has been continued in practically the same way as for the last two years. During the year there have been 178 applications for the preliminary students certificate and 124 certificates have been issued.

The value of the records of this office as authoratative information concerning the preliminary training of professional students is being constantly made clear. This has been strikingly illustrated just recently by the case of a woman whose preliminary training was inspected for dentistry some years back when your entrance examiner was serving the Dental Department of the University of Maryland. Recently in a fire she has suffered the loss of her original credentials and now needs certification concerning them. By the methods used by your entrance examiner, an original certificate of her work was secured direct from her school in Berlin in 1913, before the great world upheaval came, so that it is possible for her now from our records to secure a photographic copy of her original certificate from Berlin.

During the past year the effort has been continued and pressed a little harder to induce the State Education Department of Maryland to do its duty toward the matter of the investigation of preliminary training and its certification. A great many things may be said as to why this should be done. First, there is the fact that the Education Department of the State of Maryland by its very reason for existence should be the agency through which this work were being done, not only for medicine but for all the professions. Then, too, it would meet a very important need of the State Superintendent of Public instruction who has told me during the past year of how frequently he is called upon for just the kind of information that such a bureau must gather and keep record of. Then there is the matter of making an accredited list of the educational institutions of the state, both secondary and higher, both public and private. This was done in the scholastic year 1914-15 by your entrance examiner for other than the public schools. It has not been done on a general scale since and a new inspection and rating of these educational institutions ought to be made in order to keep the list right up to date. This is a work, however, which really belongs completely within the domain of a State Education Department. In the course of my talks with both the superintendent of public instruction and the assistant superintendent for the state of Maryland during the past year, it has seemed as if this department would undertake such a rating for the colleges and universities of the state if not for secondary private schools. So far nothing has yet been done by them, as far as I know.

Finally there is the ever recurring need to have the work of your entrance examiner placed upon a definite legal basis. Of course, if this work were adopted by the State Board of Education and incorporated into a bureau of their own, this would completely solve that question. This last question of a definite legal backing can also be solved by the adoption by your board of the policy of requiring that every applicant for the licensing examination shall furnish the preliminary certificate of your own entrance examiner. Constantly I am reminded that other state boards of medical examiners not only require the preliminary certificate of their own authorities handling such business but even require the preliminary certificate of the Board of Medical Examiners of Maryland where the man's medical education has been acquired in Maryland. It looks rather inconsistent for the Board of Medical Examiners not to require of every man who takes its licensing examinations the preliminary certificate of its own entrance examiner when the same man would be required to furnish that certificate before the medical boards of other states. To return to the question of the need of definite legal foundation for the work of entrance examiner, the adoption by your board of such a policy as has just been described would give this, since I understand that the Medical Practices Act can be so construed as to confer upon your board the authority to make such a requirement, and the states of Pennsylvania and New Jersey have definitely refused to enter into reciprocity arrangements on the preliminary certificates until such definite legal backing can be shown.

Recently, a young man of Baltimore who is going to move to New Jersey made inquiry as to whether the high school in which he had taken his training would be recognized by the New Jersey authorities. I had to reply that I did not know since it was impossible to enter into any arrangements whereby the recognition of his school by the Board of Medical Examiners in Maryland would carry with it similar recognition in New Jersey as it does carry similar recognition by the regents in the State of New York.

Respectfully submitted,
ISAAC L. OTIS,
Entrance Examiner.

The number of participants in the Examinations during the past year has been notably less, the cause of which is subject to much speculation. It is difficult to understand the influence of the war in reducing the number, unless medical students have dropped out of College and entered the Ambulance and Hospital service. The need of physicians is becoming more urgent, and it is a subject deserving attention particularly of Medical Colleges. Men enter the practice of medicine, as they do any vocation, primarily to "make a living and provide for the future." It is very much a commercial proposition and the heavy investment of money and time involved in the long training now imposed may deter many from following their inclinations or ambitions. Qualifying to play a fad or fancy upon the public and reap a rich reward is a much less expensive proposition than taking a pre-academic and present approved medical course. It is, therefore, probably a patent factor in keeping men out of the practice of Regular Medicine, and suggests the desirability of such revision of the medical and premedical curriculum, that men may be freed from the many valueless restrictions by which they have been embarrassed or halted in following the calling of their choice.

The Report of the Board of Medical Examiners for 1917 presented the percentage of rejections in each year's examinations from 1902 to 1916 inclusive, the tabulation of 1902 showing a rejection of 37 per cent, the tabulation of 1909, the middle year of the period, showing a rejection of 20 per cent, and the tabulation of 1916, the final year of the period, showing a rejection of 29 per cent. The interpretation of these percentages meant that with the supposedly better selected student body, with the methods of teaching steadily improving, as compared with fifteen years ago, the difference in the standard of educational and professional qualifications, as represented by the work of your Board of Examiners in the issue of licenses is that of 8 per cent improved; 37 per cent in 1902 and 29 per cent in 1916. In connection with this presentation of methods and percentages we submitted a few exhibits of answers in the examination to assist you in judging whether or not Academic Education and Medical School Training have met a justifiable expectation.

Whether you have given any consideration to the significance of these figures we know not, but do they not carry a serious, even a portentous meaning, the correct interpretation of which involves not only service to the public but the maintenance of a standard of service which should receive recognition and appreciation from the public? Are we getting both or either? The percentages do not indicate an advancing standard in the student body, and we have yet to discern in the attitude of the general public, such endorsement or appreciation of effort as would encourage the training and preparation of a profession capable and meritorious. Are not these facts? If you are in doubt your individual experience is rare if it does not so inform you, and the exploitation of doctors and remedies in every newspaper, religious as well as secular, with the accumulations of millions, as disclosed by the recent deaths of three or four cure-all celebrities, will help to enlighten as to the degree of appreciation manifested by that public, doomed to distress and death, except through the efforts of a profession which would appear to live and thrive only through its altruism.

If there is any doubt as to the attitude of the general public recent experience should so light the way that he who runs could read. A carefully prepared law, perhaps questionable in some features, yet, nevertheless, endorsed by a broad minded liberalism and supported by the Faculty quickly met its death before the peoples' representatives. Certain disappointed beneficiaries of the defeated legislation sought legalization of methods unquestionably vicious, and rescue was effected only by S. O. S. flashed to every county, and sufficient votes thus secured to table the proposition by a majority of six. Perhaps this review is satisfying and gratifying, as we ponder upon what "might have been," had we not thus warred for what we regard as right, these many years. Certainly, however, there should have been more fruit. Greater reward should have come to both profession and public, to the former in a recognized standing and authority, to the latter in the establishment of a relationship concededly helpful and indispensable.

To our mind the direction of effort and correction of the difficulty should be made with proper regard or deference to public sentiment. The attitude of the popular mind is always uncertain. Frequently its first impulse is along the right lines, but the wreckage of fads and theories attests its fondness for vagaries and heedlessness. Are we not attempting standards too exalted, methods incomprehensible and procedures apparently unjust and unnecessary in the estimation of the average lay mind? Have we not apparently forgotten that all law comes from the governed? Have we failed to remember that every law regulating medical practice, sanitation or any of the procedures we regard as necessary in preserving health or life is in peril through ignorance, or suspicion of purpose? Do we ignore the fact that, in the opinion of many, regulation of medical practice is to dupe or dope, as you please to term it, the people, and deprive them of the exercise of their individual liberty to secure salvation of soul and body through Christian Science, of alleviation of every pain or ailment through "manual manipulation" of displaced vertebrae, or any other manipulation agreeable to the victim and profitable to the operator, or of the supreme joy experienced in magnetic healing, or the exhilaration and fancied cure by restoratives whose magic virtues are nowhere so positively recognized as in Districts popularly known as "dry."

And why not? In this land of liberty why not? Should "Local Option" be limited to alcoholic indulgences? Why not freedom in therapy, as in religion? What class so orthodox as to monopolize the soul's salvation. What class so endowed that the mysteries of the physical organism and its operation shall be illumined as by Divine Light? We are not indulging in extravaganza, only presenting the experiences of daily life, and do they not suggest the advisability of considering legislation which shall not discriminate, which will not exclude but include any system of healing, based upon scientific study of human anatomy, physiology, pathology, recognition of disease and means of restoration to health? Knowledge, having been obtained by attendance upon legally established institutions of learning, properly officered and equipped, wherein teaching is in accordance with recognized tenets and which shall be certified as to quality, just as this Board now limits its recognition, should have standing, licensure to be secured through certification by a representative composite Board of Examiners. Why Not? How else end the otherwise interminable conflict between those contesting as to how best maintain health and save life? It is a subject with many sides and troublesome features, demanding careful thought if we are to maintain a standard of efficiency and liberalism so essential to the fulfillment of our mission.

There is very little to embody in the Report of the Board upon its routine work, and we have gone away from the beaten path easily finding some subjects which should interest the Faculty and the profession.

J. MCP. SCOTT,
Secretary.

In the above summary an average of 75 is required of those participating in the examination for the first time in order to secure a license. Those who have failed are eligible to re-examination at the expiration of six months. They are then obliged to receive a rating of 75 in each branch in which they are re-examined before license can be issued. Under the Maryland laws, students who, at the end of their second year, have successfully passed their college examination in Anatomy, Chemistry, Materia Medica and Physiology, are entitled to examination by the Board of Medical Examiners in these branches. The ratings made by these students in the examination known as the "second-year examination" are carried forward and made part of the final examination, when an average of 75 must be obtained to secure a license. We trust that this statement will make clear the apparently incomplete examination of certain participants.

REPORT OF BOARD OF MEDICAL EXAMINERS OF MARYLAND.

QUESTIONS AT THE JUNE (1917) EXAMINATIONS.

CHÉMISTRY.

Omit one question. Answer ten.

1. (a) State the properties of metals and name five (5) "heavy" metals. (b) Name three (3) univalent and three (3) bivalent metals.

2. Show by symbols the action of potassium on water and of zinc on nitric acid.

3. How may the presence of ammonium compounds be recognized in a solution containing other metals?

4. Why are Br. and I liberated from their salts when solutions of these salts are treated with chlorine water?

5. (a) How does an alcohol differ from an organic acid? (b) Give names and formulae of two (2) alcohols and two (2) organic acids.

6. Mention some chemical impurities in drinking water, and state their significance.

7. What is diacetic acid? Give qualitative test and state significance when present in the urine.

8. Why and in what form are alkalies administered in diabetic coma and in certain post-operative conditions accompanied by vomiting and marked prostration?

9. Give one method in detail for quantitative estimation of urea in urine, and state its clinical value.

10. What is peptone, and what other products accompany its formation?

11. What changes are produced by the pancreatic secretion upon proteids and fats in the food?

MATERIA MEDICA.

1. (a) Define and describe alkaloids. (b) Mention the alkaloids of nux vomica. (c) Why would you prescribe the salts of the alkaloids instead of the alkaloids themselves? (d) What is the principal alkaloid of belladonna, and its dose?

2. (a) What is formed if lime water and calomel are administered at the same time? (b) Give two derivatives of morphine used in medicine, with dose of each.

3. (a) How is opium obtained? (b) Name two alkaloids of opium and give dose of each.

4. (a) What is the official name and dose of tartar emetic? (b) What is the ordinary name of potassium nitrate? (c) Give official name and dose of Donovan's solution. (d) Write a prescription for nitrate of silver to be used in the eye of an infant.

5. Name the official preparations and doses of digitalis, cascara sagrada, ipecac and straphanthus.

6. Give the hypodermic dose of the following: Sulph. strychnine, sulph. morphine, apomorphine hydrochloride, nitroglycerine and pilocarpine hydrochlorate, sulph. atropine.

7. (a) What are antipyretics? (b) By what methods do they act? (c) Name some of the antipyretics.

8. (a) Name four diuretics and give dose of each. (b) Mention three diaphoretics and give doses.

9. Define a laxative, a saline purgative, a drastic purgative, a hydragogue purgative, and an example of each and dose.

10. How do styptics and hemostatics differ? Give two examples of each. Define astringents and name three mineral and three vegetable astringents with dose of each.

THERAPEUTICS.

1. Physiological action of turpentine. Therapy of terpinhydrate.

2. Therapy of strophanthus; wherein does it differ from digitalis?

3. Notable therapy and use of four salts of sodium: Bicarbonate, chloride, bromide, salicylate.

4. Therapy of senna; name two of its preparations least disagreeable and most effective.

5. Therapy of scilla; in what combination with other drugs is it important, and for what conditions?

6. Plumbeum: External and internal therapy, and in what combination?

7. Write two prescriptions in official terms without abbreviation containing four ingredients; one for bronchitis with persistent cough and scant secretion, the other for bronchitis with abundant secretion.

8. Aqua hydrogenii dioxide; its therapy.

9. Colchicum, physiological action special therapy.

10. Arsenium, therapy and preferable preparations.

ANATOMY.

1. Describe upper third of femur, giving attachments of muscles.

2. Name and classify the joints of the lower extremity.

3. Name muscles of eyeball and eyelids and give their nerve supply.

4. Bound the mediastinum and name contents of superior mediastinal space.

5. Describe the pleura.

6. Name the coverings of the spinal cord and state at what level the spinal cord begins and ends.

7. In case of ligation of superficial femoral artery in Scarpa's triangle, how would collateral circulation be established?

8. Describe the quadriceps extensor muscle.

9. Give origin, course and termination of the saphenous veins.

10. Describe the pituitary body.

PRACTICE.

1. Define the following: Koplik's spots; Cheyne-Stokes breathing; Babinski's reflex; Graves' disease; auto-intoxication.

2. Describe the technique of a lumbar puncture, and of what diagnostic value is it?

3. Give the treatment of lues.

4. Give causes, symptoms, differential diagnosis and treatment of chronic interstitial nephritis.

5. What is meant by pulse pressure? What conditions would you suspect in a patient with a systolic blood pressure of 200 mm. or over?

6. Give symptoms and prophylaxis of typhus fever.

7. Give the causes, general symptoms and treatment of obstructive jaundice.

8. Give the etiology and treatment of acute cystitis.

9. Give comparative table of contents of cow's milk and women's milk. How would you modify cow's milk for a baby three months old?

10. Describe scabies. How would you treat a well-developed case?

PATHOLOGY.

Give pathology of:

1. Acute lymphadenitis of inguinal region.

2. Purpura hemorrhagica.

3. Acute tonsillitis.

4. Cholera infantum.

5. Tabes dorsalis.

6. Lobar pneumonia.

7. Catarrhal jaundice.

8. Gonorrhreal conjunctivitis.

9. Arterio sclerosis.

10. Describe spirocheta pallida.

SURGERY.

1. Give symptoms and treatment of acute glaucoma.

2. What are the symptoms and treatment of acute inflammation of the mastoid?

3. Give symptoms and treatment of extra capsular fracture of the femur.

4. Name the varieties of dislocation of the shoulder joint. Give symptoms and treatment of the commonest form.

5. Give the differential diagnosis between scirrhus and non-malignant tumors of the breast. Briefly outline treatment for each condition.

6. What are the symptoms of strangulated inguinal hernia?

7. Describe briefly a typical case of acute empyema, giving all aids to diagnosis of said condition.

8. Give symptoms and treatment of gunshot and stab wounds of the abdominal wall involving the intestine.

9. Describe the clinical picture which a patient with peritonitis presents to the observer and give the physical signs on which a diagnosis of peritonitis is based.

10. Give causes and symptoms of ischemic contracture (Volkmann's). How may it be avoided?

OBSTETRICS.

1. Trace the fetal circulation and describe what changes occur at birth.

2. What is Baudelocque's diameter? How is it taken? What is its normal measurement?

3. In the description of a normal birth define the terms: (a) Engagement. (b) Internal rotation. (c) Disengagement. (d) External restitution.

4. In the examination of a pregnant woman, state where you would find the fetal heart in the several presentations and positions.

5. Describe the mechanism of the third stage of labor.

6. (a) Give treatment of ptyalism of pregnancy. (b) Give treatment of chorea gravidarum.

7. Give symptoms and treatment of incomplete abortion.

8. Give diagnosis and treatment of coccygodynia.

9. Give some of the causes of "one child sterility."

10. What conditions demand a hysterectomy?

PHYSIOLOGY.

1. (a) What is blood pressure? (b) What factors determine normal blood pressure? (c) Give method of taking blood pressure and the average in male and female.

2. (a) Give mechanism of respiration. (b) What is about the normal ratio of respiration to heart pulsation?

3. Define and give physiologic significance of dyspnea, dysphagia and apnea.

4. (a) What is meant by digestion? (b) Name the secretions of the alimentary tract, their reactions and functions.

5. State the physiologic functions of the liver.

6. (a) How are the proteids, (b) carbohydrates, (c) fats and (d) salts utilized in the process of metabolism?

7. (a) What are ptomaines, and how are they produced? (b) What proportion of nitrogenous and non-nitrogenous elements in the diet is most advantageous? (c) What becomes of the nitrogen ingested with the food?

8. (a) What post-mortem test should be applied to prove that air has entered the lungs of a supposedly stillborn child? (b) Give a method of producing artificial respiration.

9. Describe the arrangement of the sympathetic nervous system.

10. (a) Give composition, reaction, specific gravity and uses of blood. (b) What conditions retard, suspend or prevent the coagulation of blood? (c) What changes take place in the composition of the blood as it passes through the kidneys?

REPORT OF BOARD OF MEDICAL EXAMINERS OF MARYLAND.

QUESTIONS AT THE DECEMBER (1917) EXAMINATIONS.

SURGERY.

1. Give the differential diagnosis between acute catarrhal conjunctivitis and gonorrhoeal ophthalmia.
2. Give symptoms and treatment of acute catarrhal otitis media.
3. Give symptoms and treatment of tuberculosis of the hip joint.
4. What technique and treatment would you employ for a gunshot wound of the leg?
5. What do you understand by a Colles fracture? Give signs, symptoms and treatment.
6. What are the symptoms of a chronic luxation of a semi-lunar cartilage of the knee joint? Give treatment.
7. Describe rodent ulcers. Give their common locations and treatment.
8. Name the varieties of goitre and mention the indications for surgical interference.
9. What is the most frequent dislocation of the shoulder? Give diagnosis, two methods of induction, with after-treatment.
10. Give diagnostic characteristics of (a) varicose, (b) tubercular, (c) luetic ulcer.

OBSTETRICS AND GYNECOLOGY.

1. What changes occur in the breasts during pregnancy?
2. How can you predict the day of confinement?
3. Give some of the causes of abortion and premature labor.
4. In the case of twins, how can you tell from the placenta whether they are from the same ova or from different ones?
5. What is stricture uteri, and what is its treatment?
6. What are some of the dangers of precipitate labor?
7. What is the chief cause of hemorrhage prior to the time of labor, and what is your treatment for this condition?
8. Under what conditions would you do an internal podalic version, and describe in detail how you would perform it?
9. Give treatment of vaginitis of pregnancy.

10. Differentiate between a sloughing myoma and a cancer of the uterus.

PRACTICE.

1. Give the differential diagnosis between measles and scarlet fever. What complications are likely to accompany or follow scarlet fever, and give their treatment.
2. Give the symptoms, physical signs and differential diagnosis of acute lobar (croupous) pneumonia.
3. Give the etiology, diagnosis and treatment of cirrhosis of the liver.
4. Give the clinical symptoms, laboratory findings and differential diagnosis of Hodgkin's disease.
5. Describe in detail how you would manage a case of typhoid fever so as to prevent its spreading. Tuberculosis. Diphtheria.
6. What is psoriasis? Give its symptoms and treatment.
7. Give the causes, clinical symptoms and treatment of arteriosclerosis.
8. Give the symptoms and treatment of chorea.
9. Give the causes, symptoms and treatment of acute ileocolitis in a child one year of age.
10. What are the chief causes of convulsions in children and infants?

PATHOLOGY.

Give pathology of:

1. Acne vulgaris.
2. Acute otitis media.
3. Pernicious anemia.
4. Angina pectoris.
5. Locomotor ataxia.
6. Tuberculus meningitis.
7. Acute nephritis.
8. Dental caries.
9. Reynaud's disease.
10. Duodenal ulcer.

PHYSIOLOGY.

1. State causes of pressure in the arteries, capillaries and veins.

2. Name some of the bodily states which lessen the alkalinity of the blood.
 3. Describe the process of osmosis and give examples in the human economy.
 4. (a) Name the secretions of the alimentary canal, their reactions and functions. (b) Name the active principles of the digestive secretions.
 5. (a) Describe bile and its uses, where first found. Trace its course. (b) Name the bile salts.
 6. State the general classes into which foods are divided, and give examples of each.
 7. (a) What are the functions of the skin and its appendages? (b) What matters are excreted by the skin? (c) How may the function be affected as to the amount of excretions?
 8. (a) Describe the functions of the kidneys. (b) Do both kidneys constantly act? (c) How does the impairment of the functions of the kidneys affect that of the skin and lungs? (d) Give the variations within limits of health in the specific gravity of urine.
 9. Describe nerve-cells and fibers.
 10. (a) Define reflex action, and give example. (b) Give illustrations of morbid reflex action.
- MATERIA MEDICA.
1. Tartar emetic. The official preparation and dose as an expectorant and as an emetic and the incompatibles.
 2. (a) Name six official preparations of mercury. (b) Name two alkaloids of opium.
 3. (a) Give the official name and dose of Epsom salts, Rochelle salts and Glauber's salts. (b) State strength of dilute hydrochloric acid as compared to absolute acid.
 4. What is incompatibility in medicines, and what are the different kinds of incompatibles? Give example of each.
 5. How does an antagonist differ from an antidote? Give examples.
 6. (a) Define briefly electricity as a remedial agent. (b) Define massage.
 7. (a) Name the official preparations of zinc. (b) Mention the alkaloids of nux vomica.
 8. Name a vesicant derived from the animal kingdom, one derived from the vegetable kingdom, and one from the mineral kingdom.
 9. (a) Define antiseptics. (b) Name two intestinal antiseptics most generally used. (c) Name three most generally used externally.
 10. Define toxins and antitoxins, and mention some conditions in which serum therapy has proven successful.
- THERAPEUTICS.
1. Name four salts of sodium and special uses.
 2. Write two prescriptions in official terms, without abbreviation, containing three ingredients; one a stomachic, the other for acute rheumatism.
 3. Therapy of nux vomica—preferable preparations, and mode of administration.
 4. Acid tannicum—therapy and preferable preparations.
 5. Emetinae hydrochloridum—therapy and administration.
 6. Epinephrina—therapy and administration.
 7. Paraffinum—therapy and method of use.
 8. Therapy of hydg. bichlor. and hydg. chlorinate.
 9. Three salts of ammonium—therapy of each.
 10. Therapy of belladonna—symptoms of overdose and treatment.
- ANATOMY.
1. Define marrow, periosteum, compact and cancellous bone, epiphysis, diaphysis.
 2. Bound the superiod carotid triangle, and name the contents of same.
 3. Name the organs of generation in the male and female, and describe the ovary.
 4. Define hernia, and name and locate all hernias which occur in abdomen (not traumatic).
 5. State what muscles enter into the formation of (a) anterior wall and (b) floor of pelvis.
 6. State definitely the result of cutting in living subjects the following nerves: Radial, peroneal, pudic, anterior femoral (below Pott's ligament).
 7. What anatomical structures pass through the sphenoidal fissure (foramen lacerum anterius).
 8. Name salivary glands, and locate orifices of their ducts.
 9. Through what vessels does blood pass in going from spleen to under surface of middle toe.
 10. Name bones and ligaments entering into formation of ankle joint.

CHEMISTRY.

1. Describe phosphorus, and name and give formula of three (3) of its compounds.
 2. Why should solutions of silver nitrate not be employed after irrigations with salt solution? Illustrate by formula.
 3. How is chlorine made, and what are its chemical properties?
 4. What are simple and what are compound proteids?
 5. What is glucose? Why is it sometimes employed in solution intravenously?
6. Name three (3) hydrocarbons, and give formula. Name three (3) carbohydrates, and give formula.
 7. What is Fisher's solution? What is its chemical effect when administered by the vein?
 8. Describe two (2) important chemical tests used in examining stomach contents.
 9. Describe two (2) important chemical tests used in examining urine.
 10. What chemicals are used in purifying water for drinking purposes, and how are they employed?

Summary of Results of Examination Held by the Board of Medical Examiners of Maryland, December 11, 12, 13 and 14, 1917.

In the above summary an average of 75 is required of those participating in the examination for the first time in order to secure a license. Those who have failed are eligible to re-examination at the expiration of six months. They are then obliged to receive a rating of 75 in each branch in which they are re-examined before license can be issued. Under the Maryland laws, students who, at the end of their second year, have successfully passed their college examination in Anatomy, Chemistry, Materia Medica and Physiology are entitled to examination by the Board of Medical Examiners in these branches. The ratings made by these students in the examination known as the "second-year examination" are carried forward and made part of the final examination, when an average of 75 must be obtained to secure a license. We trust that this statement will make clear the apparently incomplete examination of certain participants.
