REPORT OF
The Board of Medical Examiners
TO THE
House of Delegates,
Medical and Chirurgical Faculty
APRIL 1920

The Board of Medical Examiners has continued its work along the line regarded, after long experience, as best suited to meet the varied conditions affecting the applicant for licensure and secure qualified recruits for the profession.

While the practical features of an examination as represented by inspection and description of anatomical specimens, physical examination, clinical diagnosis and laboratory investigation seem to have much to commend, and do impress the superficial or inexperienced observer as representing the best method of ascertaining with exactitude the real equipment of those applying for licensure, nevertheless the trial made by this Board, limited it is true, has not secured results commensurate with the great consumption of time and increase of expense for both examiner and examined. The trial justified disapproval of the suggested change and strengthened approval of the method in vogue and adhered to since the creation of the Board. Reference is made to this feature of examination only that you may know that due consideration has been given a subject receiving attention in the journals and regarded by advocates with much favor.

A vastly more important subject for consideration is the academic or pre-medical education possessed by those applying for admission to the profession. This seems to be a simple statement of the fact about which there could be no controversy, yet too much stress can not be placed upon it, constituting as it does the foundation or guaranty of subsequent individual and professional standing and success. It should go without question that a medical man should be an educated man, if not indeed a man learned beyond the average individual. His calling presupposes study and acquaintance with the higher literature and science. The significance of education in its broadest and most liberal meaning and application is preparation, or fitting for any calling or usefulness in life, and therefore it is essential, so axiomatic that it appears puerile to speak of it, that the individual who chooses the profession of medicine as his special vocation should have a substantial, thorough education which in the process of acquirement has not only informed but trained the mind. Without the mental equipment resulting from this academic or premedical training, as it is termed, the development of the educated physician equipped with personality, manner and appreciation of the varying conditions and attitudes of the sick and afflicted will result in failure and dis-appointment to himself and discredit rather than dignify and honor the profession.

The medical colleges of today are so standardized and equipped with qualified teaching bodies that mediocrity is rapidly yielding to superiority, so that a thorough and complete medical education is at hand to those qualified to take it. We are led to these observations by contact with the papers submitted by participants in the examination.

It is not so much a question of broadening the medical course as advocated by many, but the general consensus of opinion among working physicians seems to be that the medical college curriculum is sufficiently comprehensive to qualify for general practice, and that if higher training and specializing is desired it should be secured by post graduate study. With this admission, however, rings out the clear and unquestioned warning of time immemorial that without foundation the structure totters and ultimately falls, so that the first part of our problem of medical education is concerned with the preliminary training of the student who goes from the academy into the medical school. Then with this training subsequently combined with the more strictly scientific and professional he may go forth adequately prepared both professionally and scholastically to care for the afflicted and maintain the standards exemplified in the lives of so many who have constituted the strength and usefulness of this Faculty.

We shall therefore note with absorbing interest whether the new method of determining educational fitness through matriculation tests of the State Board of Education will bring the much desired improvement in the intellectual equipment of those seeking admission to medical colleges.

Owing to the breaking up by the war of all the usual lines of industry and the interruption of the regular work of medical colleges with depleted classes the December 1918 examination was not held. Those of June and December 1919 were held as usual, but with a diminished number of participants. Details of these examinations are part of the printed report. While attendance upon the regular examination was in reduced number the movement of physicians from State to State through existing comity was unusually active. In as much as the expense attending this migration is very much less than that involved in the preparation and holding of the regular examination for license, we enjoyed an increase of the net revenue to such an extent that the Board felt justified in making a contribution toward payment of the debt resting upon the Faculty building, and you will note in the Treasurers Report that on December 4th a check was drawn in favor of John Ruhrah, President for $1000.00 to be so applied.

The Maryland Board recognizing the value of close association with the various Educational and Examining Boards operating through the American Medical Association, has always been represented at these meetings, usually by the President.

The Annual Congress on Medical Education and Licensure held at Chicago on March 1st, 2nd and 3rd was probably the most satisfactory one which has ever taken place. There were about two hundred and fifty delegates present. The speakers were men of ability and competent to speak with authority on the subjects with which they dealt. Very complete reports of the meetings including the papers read and the discussions have been published in the Journal of the A. M. A. On February 29th there was also held a meeting of the Council on Education at which the President of this Board was present representing the Federation of State Medical Boards. On the same day was held a meeting of the National Board of Medical Examiners of which he has been a member since its organization four years ago. And finally may be mentioned the business session of the Federation of State Boards on the afternoon of March 3rd. On the education end the predominating thought was concerning the necessity for and the importance of post graduate instruction. This was constantly cropping out in the papers and discussions, and in the conversation about the hotel lobbies.

The larger Universities and Medical centers are preparing to give this instruction in courses ranging from a few weeks or months to more ambitious ones extending over several years, in some instances leading to special degrees. It is stated that many thousands of Medical Graduates are most anxious to pursue these studies. Part of this is due to the fact that European Medical Centers have been closed for four years to American Students and those most resorted to in the past, those of Germany and Austria, will continue closed for a long time to come. Again it would seem that there has been a general awakening on the part of many Medical men to their deficiencies and an earnest purpose to remove at least some of them. Medical Officers Training camps were probably responsible for some of this, as in these camps many thousand physicians were gathered together and rubbed elbows, and to the intelligent ones it was apparent that not only were they very ignorant of many things they ought to have known, but that their fellows were in the same boat. If they themselves did not appreciate their deficiencies their instructors certainly did, and as these latter were mostly drawn from the leaders in the various lines it is natural their minds should turn to post graduate study as a means of raising ideals and improving conditions.

The Federation of State Boards gives promise of becoming a much more active and useful factor in Medical affairs. The officers are active and the membership has increased. Reciprocity received a great deal of consideration and a committee was appointed to draw up a new application blank which it is hoped can be simpler and be used by nearly all the boards.

The prosecution of the illegal practitioner is always difficult and frequently interesting through the resourcefulness and disguises assumed by the offender.

After a period of comparative quiet there appeared during the year a small number of irregular practitioners. Among the cases handled by the Baltimore City Police at the instigation of this Board may be mentioned the following. In April there appeared on the house 1634 E. Baltimore St., the sign, "Dr. Norton, Specialist Eye, Ear and Throat." There was no such name on the list of registered physicians and after a visit from the President of the Board and two or three City detectives the physician living in the house took down the sign. Dr. Norton was a myth.

George W. Johnson colored, 2006 Druid Hill Ave. Found guilty and fined $10.00 and costs in the Criminal Court by Judge Dawkins, on November 2nd, 1919.

This party is a full blooded negro and not only had patients at his home but also traveled by automobile through the lower counties of the western shore. According to his books which were examined by the detectives he did a lucrative business. A former State Senator testified at his trial that he had been cured of Rheumatism by Johnson after many prominent physicians, regularly registered, had failed to relieve him. He then obtained a letter from the Senator, used it as an advertisement in the Sunday papers and apparently kept right on practicing. He could well afford to pay the nominal fine.

Word H. Mills, 44 N. Bentalou St. Case settled on payment of court costs and order to discontinue practicing by Judge Heuislar in the Criminal Court on November 19, 1919.

This man made a specialty of removing moles and warts and from the long list he published in a circular, treated most successfully many bankers, brokers, merchants, capitalists and others. He promised to discontinue practicing and it is believed has kept his promise.

Benjamin F. Swindell, 620 N. Eutaw St. Found guilty and fined $10.00 and costs in the Criminal Court by Judge Dawkins on December 3rd, 1919.

This man had an alleged cancer cure. We know of some failures but also of some apparent successes. A member of this Faculty from Crisfield wrote of a patient of his who had a cancer of the breast removed by a prominent surgeon of this city and five years later there was a recurrence. The patient became very cachectic, lost many pounds of flesh and was confined to bed. She started back to consult another Baltimore surgeon but hearing of other remarkable cures by Swindell was diverted and went to him. The recurrent growth was successfully treated. The woman is well and strong, does all her own house work and is loud in her praises of Swindell. Another patient from Cambridge, Md., testified that he was cured after having been treated by a former President of this faculty and others by various means, including X-rays, without any success.

Case of Robert Nelson, Druggist, 1107 W. Baltimore St. was dismissed by Grand Jury November 2nd, 1919.

In this case one G. testified that he consulted the druggist for impotence and was guaranteed a cure for $5 covering a months treatment. The $5 was paid and he was given a supply of medicine the following day. No benefit resulting after three weeks he was persuaded to purchase an electric battery. G. declined to do this and reported the case to the President of this Board. The Grand Jury apparently did not see anything amiss in treatment administered by a druggist.

In the above summary an average of 75 is required of those participating in the examination for the first time in order to secure a license. Those who have failed are eligible to re-examination at the expiration of six months. They are then obliged to receive a rating of 75 in each branch in which they are re-examined before license can be issued. Under the Maryland laws, students who, at the end of their second year, have successfully passed their college examination in Anatomy, Chemistry, Materia Medica and Physiology are entitled to examination by the Board of Medical Examiners in these branches. The ratings made by these students in the examination known as the "second-year examination" are carried forward and made part of the final examination, when an average of 75 must be obtained to secure a license. We trust that this statement will make clear the apparently incomplete examination of certain participants.

In the above summary an average of 75 is required of those participating in the examination for the first time in order to secure a license. Those who have failed are eligible to re-examination at the expiration of six months. They are then obliged to receive a rating of 75 in each branch in which they are re-examined before license can be issued. Under the Maryland laws, students who, at the end of their second year, have successfully passed their board examination in Anatomy, Chemistry, Materia Medica and Physiology, are entitled to examination by the Board of Medical Examiners in these branches. The ratings made by these students in the examination known as the "second-year examination" are carried forward and made part of the final examination, when an average of 75 must be obtained to secure a license. We trust that this statement will make clear the apparently incomplete examination of certain participants.

Report of Board of Medical Examiners of Maryland

QUESTIONS AT THE JUNE (1919) EXAMINATION

CHEMISTRY

1. Name the three great branches of chemistry that you have studied and tell briefly what is included in each one.
2. Give names and formulas of 4 salts of each of the following: (a) Sodium, (b) Iron, (c) Mercury.
3. Write the equations representing the chemical reactions between (a) Sulphuric acid and barium chloride, (b) Hydrochloric acid and zinc, (c) Lime water and carbon dioxide.
4. Define and illustrate the terms acids, bases and salts.
5. Define isotonic, hypotonic and hypertonic solutions.
6. Name the principal organic acids.
7. How is urea formed in the body? Give a method for estimation of urea in the urine.
8. How would you determine whether phosphates or urates were the cause of turbidity of the urine.
9. Tell how to test for free hydrochloric acid in gastric contents.
10. What are proteins.

DR. HENRY T. COLLENBURG,
Examiner.

Wednesday morning, June 18, 1919.

OBSTETRICS AND GYNECOLOGY.

1. Define position, presentation.
2. Give symptoms of threatened and inevitable abortion with differential diagnosis.
3. Describe the changes that take place in the uterus during pregnancy.
4. Give differential diagnosis between appendicitis and ectopic gestation on the right side.
5. How would you manage an occiput posterior presentation.
6. What is "the lochia", describe it fully.
7. What is meant by "missed labor" and give symptoms.
8. Give symptoms and treatment of eclampsia.
9. Give symptoms and treatment of submucous myomata.
10. Give usual clinical history obtained in cancer of uterus.

DR. JOHN L. RILEY,
Examiner.

Wednesday afternoon, June 18, 1919.

THERAPEUTICS.

1. Give the therapy of three salts of hydargyrum.
2. Give the therapy of three salts of potassium.
3. Write a prescription in Latin, without abbreviations, containing four ingredients

(one being a preparation of arsenic) stating condition for which used.

4. Write two prescriptions, each showing a chemical incompatibility, and explain.
5. State the medicinal and dietetic uses of saccharum.
6. Give the therapy of thyroid, indications and contraindications for its use and mode of administration.
7. What drugs modify arterial tension? Explain modus operandi.
8. Explain the action of diphtheria and tetanus antitoxin, as prophylactic and curative agents.

9. Give the therapy of ergot in parturition.
10. Give indications for use of glonoinum.
11. In marked cyanosis, leaky skin, labored respiration, with impending pulmonary effusion, due to cardiac inefficiency, what would be your therapy?

Answer ten, of which question eleven must be one.

DR. J. MCPHERSON SCOTT,
Examiner.
Thursday morning, June 19, 1919.

MATERIA MEDICA.

1. Name the official preparations and give dose of digitalis, cascara sagrada, ipecacuanha, and strophanthus.
2. Give the adult dose of the following drugs, using the official terms: Fowler's solution of arsenic; tincture nux vomica; laudanum; corrosive sublimate; Norwood's tincture veratrum; sweet spirits nitre; fluid extract ergot; tincture belladonna.
3. Write a prescription for 36 pills or capsules, for an adult, containing iron, quinine, strychnia, arsenic and gentian, to be given three times a day, and state when best to be given.
4. Mention and describe the methods of introducing medicine into the system; and state the relative effect of the several methods; and how the dose varies.
5. Define toxins and antitoxins, and mention some conditions in which serum therapy has proven successful.
6. Name and give adult dose of three diuretics; three emetics; three anti-pyretics; three emmenagogues; three diaphoretics; and three antiseptics.
7. (a) Define anesthetics, and state difference between general and local anesthetics.
(b) Name those of each class most generally used.
8. State some of the circumstances modifying the effect of drugs; and give method for calculating dose for children and females.
9. Give the strength of the following solutions to be used in the eye: silver nitrate; zinc sulphate; boric acid; and cocaine.

10. Name three drugs used to lower blood pressure, and give dose of each.

DR. LEWIS A. GRIFFITH,
Examiner.

Thursday morning, June 19, 1919.

PHYIOLOGY.

1. (a) Describe the origin of the various constituents of the blood. (b) Where are the red corpuscles supposed to be destroyed? (c) Give some of the causes for an increase or decrease of white corpuscles.

2. (a) What is blood pressure? (b) Give method of ascertaining, and the average systolic pressure in male and female.

3. (a) Into what general classes are foods divided? (b) Give examples of each. (c) Give function of each class in the nutritive process.

4. Describe the physiology of menstruation.

5. Urine: (a) The composition; specific gravity; reaction; and average quantity passed in health during 24 hours. (b) State also the most frequent abnormal ingredients of the urine.

6. What are the functions of (a) The cornea? (b) The retina? (c) The iris?

7. What is accomplished physiologically by the portal circulation?

8. Bile: (a) The functions, ingredients, and how secreted. (b) Give tests for bile salts and bile acids.

9. Describe the action of the vasmotor nerves.

10. What are the functions of the cerebellum?

DR. LEWIS A. GRIFFITH,
Examiner.

Thursday afternoon, June 19, 1919.

PATHOLOGY.

1. Describe the bony changes occurring in rickets.

2. Describe the beef tape worm, and its life history.

3. Describe the gross post mortem changes evident in a marked case of chronic passive congestion.

4. Discuss edema; and give examples of the different types.

5. Give the description of carcinoma of the breast, gross and microscopic appearances, and metastatic phenomena.

6. What is your conception of the manner in which a tuberculous infection is implanted in a lung.

7. Describe an inflammatory reaction.

8. Describe a case of pyelitis from a pathological and etiological standpoint.

9. Describe Spirochaeta pallida, and method for demonstrating same.

10. Describe in detail a method of preparing tissue for microscopical examination.

DR. HENRY M. FITZHUGH,
Examiner.

Friday morning, June 20, 1919.

PRACTICE OF MEDICINE.

1. Differentiate between typhoid fever and acute miliary tuberculosis.

2. Give differential diagnosis between gastric ulcer and carcinoma of the stomach.

3. Name the different varieties of stomatitis. Give treatment for two of them.

4. Define locomotor ataxia (tabes dorsalis) and give its symptoms and treatment.

5. Give the symptoms and treatment of acute catarrhal croup in a child 3 years of age.

6. Give the mode of transmission, period of incubation, symptoms and prophylaxis of rabies.

7. Differentiate between hysteria and epilepsy. Name the varieties of epilepsy and discuss its treatment.

8. Give the symptoms of acute tonsillitis. Name the organisms usually found, and the treatment in full.

9. Name the periods of incubation and of isolation in cases of smallpox; diphtheria; mumps; scarlet fever and anterior poliomyelitis.

10. Give course, prognosis, and treatment of acne vulgaris.

DR. E. E. WOLFF,
Examiner.

Friday afternoon, June 20, 1919.

SURGERY.

1. Symptomatology and treatment of acute catarrhal otitis media.

2. Give symptoms, diagnosis and treatment of acute glaucoma.

3. Give symptoms, diagnosis and treatment of tuberculous disease of the hip.

4. Give differential diagnosis between a fracture of the surgical neck of the humerus and a dislocation of the shoulder joint.

5. Give varieties of the ileus and some of the causes of each. Outline treatment.

6. Describe the fractures commonly designated as: (a) Colles' fracture. (b) Pott's fracture. Give treatment of each.

7. Describe a rodent ulcer. Give their common locations and treatment.

8. State the avenues and possible points of metastasis of a malignant growth of the breast. On what symptoms and signs may an early diagnosis of cancer of the breast be based?

9. Give symptoms and treatment of acute osteomyelitis.

10. Give the differential diagnosis between carcinoma of the stomach and pernicious anemia.

DR. HARRY L. HOMER,
Examiner.

Saturday morning, June 21, 1919.

ANATOMY.

1. What arteries supply the heart with blood, and where do they originate?

2. Describe the temporal bone.
3. Name varieties of articulation and give example of each.
4. What glands are in small intestines and where located?
5. Give brief description of the lymphatic system.
6. Locate deltoid, glenoid and Poupart's ligaments.
7. (a) What are the divisions of the brain?
(b) Name the principal fissures. (c) What fissures divide each hemisphere into lobes?
- (d) Name the lobes of the brain. (e) Of what does the corpus callosum consist?
8. Describe the knee joint with overlying structures and muscular attachments in immediate vicinity.
9. Attachments, action and nerve supply of following muscles: (a) Teres major. (b) Rhomboidei. (c) Pectoralis minor. (d) Psoas magnus.
10. Describe the palmar arches.

DR. HERBERT HARLAN,
Examiner.

Saturday afternoon, July, 21 1919.

In the above summary an average of 75 is required of those participating in the examination for the first time in order to secure a license. Those who have failed are eligible to re-examination at the expiration of six months. They are then obliged to receive a rating of 75 in each branch in which they are re-examined before license can be issued. Under the Maryland laws, students who, at the end of their second year, have successfully passed their college examination in Anatomy, Chemistry, Materia Medica and Physiology, are entitled to examination by the Board of Medical Examiners in these branches. The ratings made by these students in the examination known as the "second-year examination" are carried forward and made part of the final examination, when an average of 75 must be obtained to secure a license. We trust that this statement will make clear the apparently incomplete examination of certain participants.

Report of the Board of Medical Examiners of Maryland
