The Course of Study.

PATHOLOGY AND THERAPEUTICS.—From this chair will be taught the principles of general pathology; also the special pathology, diagnosis, and treatment of those diseases which involve the structures of the mouth and adjacent parts, and the local effect upon these organs of general, constitutional and hereditary disease. All the prominent articles of the materia medica will be accurately described, illustrated by specimens and botanical plates, and accompanied by their appropriate therapeutical indications.

DENTAL SCIENCE AND MECHANISM.—From this chair the student will be taught the true bearing of scientific culture upon Dental art; its absolute necessity, and the relative importance of the several sciences; the connection between dentistry and general medicine and surgery; and the mechanical, artistic and æsthetic elements of dentistry, which distinguish it from all other branches of the Ars medendi.

All details of dental mechanism will be explained and demonstrated; the tendency to reject older methods for untried novelties guarded against, whilst all discoveries and improvements, real or supposed, will be fully described. The lecturer's aim will be to make plain both the method and the rule; but, more than this, to give so clearly the scientific principles thereof, that the student shall be master to the rule and not the slave to a set of formulas. It will be shown that dental mechanism demands much more than perfect manual dexterity, and that the acquirement of even this dexterity involves the exercise of some of the highest mental faculties.

PRACTICE OF DENTAL SURGERY.—The lectures of this chair will comprise all the practical details connected with the etiology, pathology and treatment of the morbid conditions and structural changes of the teeth, gums, alveolar processes, and maxillary sinus; the nature, prevention and treatment of salivary accretions, of exposed and diseased nervous pulp; extraction of teeth, and the use of anæsthetic agents for dental operations; materials used in filling teeth, such as plain and adhesive gold foil, crystal, shred and plastic gold, &c., and the various methods of introducing the same; form, manner of using, and the art of tempering instruments; correction of irregularities of the dental arch; dental hygiene, &c.

CHEMISTRY.—It will be the aim of the professor of this chair to give an accurate general idea of the principles of the science, dwelling especially upon those points which are of peculiar interest to the dental student. The physiological relations of chemistry will be unfolded as far as practicable, leaving particular details to the Professor of Physiology. Careful attention will be paid to the chemistry of the metals, and of the porcelain materials used in Dentistry; also to the vital chemistry of anæsthetics. The special chemistry of the mouth, the stomach and the intestinal tube will be fully treated.

ANATOMY.—This science will be treated in its application to Dental Surgery. Its subdivisions, microscopical and comparative, will receive appropriate attention, together with the chief object of the course, the study of Human Regional Anatomy. Thus a general survey of the subject will be taken, sufficient to enable the student to acquire a comprehensive knowledge of the science. The convenient and well arranged Dissecting Rooms in the College Building afford ample opportunity for the study of Practical Anatomy, of which it is hoped every student will avail himself.

PHYSIOLOGY.—The rapid advance of Dental Surgery necessitates a division in the chair of Anatomy and Physiology. This necessity was promptly met by the Faculty several years ago, and a distinct chair and professorship assigned to Physiology. The course of lectures will embrace to a certain extent, Anatomy, general, comparative and microscopical, so that the physical character of organs, and the physical principles involved in their action, may be fresh in the memory of the student at the time of description of their functions and their physiological relations. The Physiology of the Dental organs will be very distinctly set forth. Special attention will also be paid to the nervous system. Digestion, normal and abnormal, will be thoroughly investigated, and the importance of oral digestion clearly defined, as being the first step in that process upon the perfection of which the remaining acts mainly depend. Lectures will be given on Hygiene and Dietetics. The lectures on Anatomy, Physiology and Chemistry are as thorough as in any medical college, and special attention is also paid to the Microscopical Anatomy of the dental structures.

DEPARTMENT OF PRACTICE.—The Faculty have spared no pains to make arrangements for the acquirement of practical skill commensurate with the importance of this branch of tuition. The Infirmary is open during the entire year, and the number of operating chairs in this department has been largely increased. At the commencement of the session the students are divided into classes, each occupying the room during the Infirmary hours of the day.

In the laboratory each student has his separate desk and work-bench assigned to him, where his tools can be kept under lock and key. Practical pieces are given out in the order of matriculation. Students are also required to make experimental pieces on rubber, silver or brass, Weston's metal, &c. Each student is expected to provide his own instruments with the exception of extracting forceps, lathes and vulcanizers. All expenses attending operations upon college patients are borne by the College. Arrangements have been made to ensure a great increase in the number of patients for actual practice in the Infirmary.

Terms of Graduation, Statutes, &c.

Each candidate for graduation must present himself for examination before the Faculty upon all the subjects taught in the college. Prior to such examination, he must prepare a written thesis describing operations upon the teeth, such as the history, symptoms and treatment of special diseases of these organs, show specimens of operations upon the natural organs, and present an approved specimen of dental mechanism; also, he must have attended two full courses of lectures in this College, and be at least twenty-one years of age.

The following will be accepted as equivalent to one course in this College:—One course in any reputable Dental College. Graduation in a reputable Medical College, prior to matriculation at this College, and one year's Dental pupilage. Five years' Dental Practice, including regular pupilage. An acceptable examination on entering College upon Anatomy, Physiology, Inorganic Chemistry and Practical Dentistry, including a regular course of pupilage and several years' practice. Certificates will be required as to the length of pupilage and practice. The Student meeting either of the above requirements will have the privilege of presenting himself as a candidate for graduation at the end of but one course of lectures.

Punctual attendance upon lectures and other college duties, respect to instructors, and a strict observance of all rules, will be required from every student. Every student is required to operate in the Infirmary and Laboratory whenever called upon by the Demonstrators, unless excused by a special vote of the Faculty. No graduate will be excused from attendance at the Annual Commencement, unless by special vote of the Faculty.

The fees each session are, Professors' Fees, $100; Demonstrators' Fees, $20; Matriculation Fee, (paid only once,) $5; Diploma Fee, $30; Dissecting Ticket optional. These fees must be paid on matriculating. All tickets will be issued by the DEAN, to whom students are requested to report themselves immediately upon their arrival in the city.

The instruments, mechanical and operative, and text-books, which are necessary for use during the session, will cost about $50.

Board may be procured at from four to six dollars per week, according to quality. Students board at private boarding-houses, the quality and terms of which are as good and reasonable as in any other city.

From the fact that the Baltimore College furnishes all the material used for practice upon Infirmary patients, the expenses are no greater than at any other Dental College.

The Faculty would respectfully suggest to the friends of the College that they can greatly aid the cause of education by contributions to the Museum, for which due credit will be given and the name of the donor attached to the contribution.

TEXT-BOOKS NECESSARY DURING THE SESSION.—Harris' Principles and Practice of Dental Surgery, 10th edition, Bond's Dental Medicine, Gray's Anatomy, Dalton's or Kirke's Physiology, Smith & Neill's Compendium, Taft's Operative Dentistry, Fowne's Chemistry, Harris' Medical and Dental Dictionary, third edition.
