ANNOUNCEMENT.

The BALTIMORE COLLEGE OF DENTAL SURGERY was chartered by the Legislature of the State of Maryland in the year 1839, and is the oldest Dental College in the world.

Between seven and eight hundred students have had conferred upon them the degree of "Doctor of Dental Surgery" by this institution since its organization, and its diploma is recognized in all civilized countries as a testimonial of proficiency in the science of dentistry.

The majority of the eminent practitioners of dentistry in Europe, especially the "court dentists," are graduates of this College, and there are but few dental colleges in whose faculties are not found graduates of the Baltimore College.

The superior size and arrangement of the New College Building enables the Faculty greatly to enlarge their plan and means of instruction. Central in location, its rooms are large and well ventilated, furnished with gas, abundantly supplied with water, and provided with every convenience necessary to the comfort of the student.

The Museum of the College contains a large collection of natural and morbid specimens, interesting to the dental student, which is not surpassed by that of any institution of the kind in the world. A large number of beautiful pathological specimens have recently been added to the collection.

The New College Building contains a large and convenient Infirmary or Operating room, extending the entire length of the building, supplied with as many operating chairs as it will contain, and lighted on every side by twelve windows, and affording ample light for all operations. The Laboratory has recently been greatly enlarged, and is furnished with every appliance necessary for the practice of the Mechanical Department.

The Infirmary, from its location, commands an extensive practice; being kept open during the entire year, a very great number of patients is secured for the fall and winter months.

The plan of instruction is designed to be, in all respects, thoroughly practical, using all available means to secure a complete course of instruction in the practice as well as in the theory of dentistry.

The Operating and Mechanical Rooms have been refitted in the best manner, to meet the wants of the large and rapidly increasing practice of the Infirmary.

The absolute necessity for ACTUAL PRACTICE as an element of instruction, is not lost sight of in the effort to impart the knowledge necessary for the guidance of the dentist. In acknowledgment of the importance of this branch of tuition, the Faculty will continue to give special attention to the organization of the Practical Department.

The Faculty make no pretension to the impossibility of giving a complete professional education. Education is a life work, and Dental Science has widely extended affinities. "With so vast a field of investigation before him, the intelligent inquirer must ever remain a student; whilst only the shallow pretender can affect to be the arbiter of the difficult problems which daily present themselves." There are, however, at the outset of professional life, responsibilities which no one is fitted to assume without suitable preparation. It is to meet these responsibilities in the Dental Profession that the Baltimore College proposes to train its students by a course of instruction, of which the following is a brief summary.

Course of Study.

For years past the science has been divided into a number of departments, each of which is presided over by a Professor, qualified by many years experience in teaching.

DENTAL SCIENCE AND CHEMISTRY.—From this chair the student will be taught the true bearing of scientific culture upon dental art; its absolute necessity, and the relative importance of the several sciences; the connection between dentistry and general medicine and surgery; and the mechanical, artistic and æsthetic elements of dentistry, which distinguish it from all other branches of the Ars medendi.

It will be the aim of the Professor of this chair to give an accurate, general idea of the principles of the science of Chemistry, dwelling especially upon those points which are of peculiar interest to the dental student. The physiological relations of chemistry will be unfolded as far as practicable, leaving particular details to the Professor of Physiology. Careful attention will be paid to the chemistry of the metals, and all other materials used in dentistry; also to the vital chemistry of anæsthetics. The special chemistry of the mouth, the stomach and the intestinal tube, will be fully treated.

DENTAL SURGERY, THERAPEUTICS AND MATERIA MEDICA.—The lectures of this chair will comprise all the practical details connected with the etiology, pathology and treatment of the morbid conditions and structural changes of the teeth, gums, alveolar processes and maxillary sinus; the nature, prevention and treatment of salivary accretions, of exposed and diseased nervous pulp; extraction of teeth, and the use of anæsthetic agents for dental operations; materials used in filling teeth, such as plain and adhesive gold foil, crystal, shred and plastic gold, &c., and the various methods of introducing the same; form, manner of using, and the art of tempering instruments; correction of irregularities of the dental arch; dental hygiene, &c. Also, the pathology, diagnosis and treatment of those diseases which involve the structures of the mouth and adjacent parts, and the local effect upon these organs of general, constitutional and hereditary disease. All the prominent articles of the Materia Medica will be accurately described, illustrated by specimens and botanical plates, and accompanied by their appropriate therapeutical indications.

PHYSIOLOGY AND PATHOLOGY.—The course of lectures will embrace Anatomy,—general, comparative and microscopical, so that the physical character of organs, and the physical principles involved in their action, may be fresh in the memory of the student at the time of description of their functions and their physiological relations. The physiology of the dental organs will be very distinctly set forth. Special attention will also be paid to the nervous system. Digestion, normal and abnormal, will be thoroughly investigated, and the importance of oral digestion clearly defined, as being the first step in that process, upon the perfection of which the remaining acts mainly depend. Lectures will be given on Hygiene and Dietetics. Special attention is paid to the Microscopical Anatomy of the Dental Structures, and the principles of General Pathology.

ANATOMY.—This science will be treated in its application to Dental Surgery. Its sub-divisions, microscopical and comparative, will receive appropriate attention, together with the chief object of the course—the study of Human Regional Anatomy. Thus a general survey of the subject will be taken, sufficient to enable the student to acquire a comprehensive knowledge of the science, and will embrace a systematic course of lectures on Descriptive and Surgical Anatomy, fully illustrated by dissections on the cadaver, preparations, models, drawings and other adjuncts.

The minute anatomy of the various organs and tissues of the body will be shown by the microscope, and particular attention will be given to the demonstration of the anatomy of the head and face. Convenient and well arranged dissecting rooms afford ample opportunity for the study of Practical Anatomy, of which it is hoped every student will avail himself.

CLINICAL DENTISTRY.—The Professor of this chair will deliver clinical lectures at stated times each week of the session, hold clinics for practical instruction, and superintend the operative and mechanical departments. All known methods of performing operations on the teeth and tissues involved, will be demonstrated at regular clinics, and every available means used to make the student practically competent to practice his profession.

The different preparations of gold will be manipulated, and the use of all the new appliances demonstrated.

MECHANICAL DENTISTRY AND METALLURGY.—The Professor of this chair will give a detailed description of the materials and processes employed in the construction of all varieties of dental mechanism. The student will be instructed in all the rules of art and principles of science necessary to guide him to a judicious and intelligent choice of the many methods presented to his consideration. All discoveries and inventions will be impartially discussed, and to every originator of a valuable improvement due credit will be given.

A complete series of demonstrations will illustrate the lectures on the art of preparing substitutes to supply the place of the natural organs, and of adapting them in harmony with the character and expression of the face. The mechanical contrivances for the correction of irregularities of the teeth, and other deformities of the buccal cavities, such as obturators, artificial palates, etc., will also meet with proper attention.

In the Laboratory and Infirmary, ample opportunity will be given to each student to perform, under the daily supervision of the Demonstrator, every operation in Mechanical Dentistry.

DEPARTMENT OF PRACTICE.—The Faculty have spared no pains to make arrangements for the acquirement of practical skill commensurate with the importance of this branch of tuition. The Infirmary is open during the entire year, and the number of operating chairs is as great as the large room will contain.

The Operative and Mechanical departments are now so well patronized that every student can obtain as much practice as it is possible for him to attend to. With the exception of Sunday, four hours are daily spent by the student in actual practice under the supervision of the Demonstrators, and the Clinical Professor. To allow each one equal opportunities, and to put the theories taught into practice, at the commencement of the session the students are divided into classes which secures constant rotation through the operating and mechanical departments. The demonstrators are always present to give all required information.

In the laboratory each student has his desk and work-bench assigned to him, where his instruments can be kept under lock and key. Students are also required to make experimental as well as practical pieces of all good material in use. Each student is expected to provide his own instruments with the exception of extracting forceps, lathes and vulcanizers. All expenses attending operations upon college patients are borne by the college.

ALL THE INSTRUMENTS AND TOOLS required can be procured for from $20 to $25.

Terms of Graduation, Statutes, &c.

Each candidate for graduation must present himself for examination before the Faculty upon all subjects taught in the College. Prior to such examination he must prepare a written thesis, describing operations upon the teeth, such as the history, symptoms and treatment of special diseases of these organs, show specimens of operations upon the natural organs, and present an approved specimen of dental mechanism; also, he must have attended two full courses of lectures in this college.

The following, however, will be accepted as equivalent to one course in this College:—One course in any reputable Dental College. Attendance and graduation in a reputable Medical College prior to matriculation at this College, and one year's Dental pupilage. Five years' Dental Practice, including regular pupilage. An acceptable examination on entering College, before the full Faculty in session, upon Anatomy, Physiology, Inorganic Chemistry and Practical Dentistry, including a regular course of pupilage and several years' practice. Certificates will be required as to length of pupilage and practice. The student meeting either of the above requirements will have the privilege of presenting himself as a candidate for graduation at the end of but one course of lectures.

All students, whether graduates of medicine or dental practitioners, are required to attend regularly upon all lectures, demonstrations, and clinical duties, and be examined by each member of the Faculty.

Punctual attendance upon lectures and other college duties, respect to instructors, and a strict observance of all rules, will be required of every student. Every student is required to operate in the Infirmary and Laboratory whenever called upon by the Demonstrators, unless excused by a special vote of the Faculty. No graduate will be excused from attendance at the Annual Commencement, unless by a special vote of the Faculty.

The fees each session are, Professors' Fees, $100; Demonstrators' Fees, $20; Matriculation Fee (paid only once) $5; Diploma Fee, $30; Dissecting Ticket optional, These fees, with the exception of the diploma fee, must be paid on matriculating. All tickets will be issued by the DEAN, to whom students are requested to report themselves immediately upon their arrival in the city.

From the fact that the Baltimore College furnishes all the material used for practice upon Infirmiry patients, the expenses are no greater than at any other Dental College.

BOARD may be obtained at from four to six dollars per week, according to quality. Students board at private boarding houses, the quality and terms of which are as good and reasonable as in any other city.

THE REGULAR SESSION—Will commence on the fifteenth day of October, and continue until the first of March ensuing. The course is so arranged that about twenty lectures will be delivered each week on the various branches taught in the College.

TEXT BOOKS.—Harris' Principles and Practice of Dental Surgery, 10th edition; Biddle's Materia Medica; Gray's, Wilson's or Handy's Anatomy; Dalton's or Kirke's Physiology; Fowne's Chemistry; Harris' Medical and Dental Dictionary, 3d edition.

WORKS OF REFERENCE.—Tome's Dental Surgery, Taft's Operative Dentistry, Richardson's Mechanical Dentistry, Garretson's Disease and Surgery of the Mouth and Jaws, Gross' Surgery, Heath on Injuries and Diseases of the Jaws.

THE TEXT BOOKS—Can be procured for from $25 to $30.

Graduates of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery are required to attend but one session in several of the Medical Colleges of Baltimore.

Students corresponding with the Dean will please be careful to direct their letters to
